

BARRE DAILY TIMES

Subscriptions: One year, $3; one month, 25 cts. single copy, 1 cent.

Members of the Publishers' Press.—The latest telegraphic news from all parts of the world are received by the Daily Times up to the hour of going to press.

Published Every Weekday Afternoon.

Entered at the postoffice at Barre as second class matter.

Frank E. Langley, Publisher.

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 19, 1904.

The average daily circulation of the Barre Daily Times for the week ending Saturday was copies, the largest paid circulation of any daily paper in this section.

3,425

Those who are not skeptical maintain that winter has arrived; we are inclined to side with them.

The haste with which the legislators leave Montpelier casts no reflection on the fair neighboring city. 'Tis just naturally a homesick feeling.

It will be gratifying news to the people of Vermont to learn that their committee which is investigating the conduct of state institutions will push its work next week in spite of the fact that the legislature is taking a vacation, taking out time enough to eat Thanksgiving turkey.

Any man can take a newspaper, it is the cheapest thing he can buy. Every time the hen cackles and lays an egg, his paper for that week is paid for—Morrisville News and Citizen.

That may explain why subscriptions are not more often paid; the hen is loath to cackle except in certain periods of the year.

As long as the local merchants have taken a decided stand regarding donations to fair and advertising in circular we trust that there will be the backbone to stiffen the determination. Too many such actions are taken only to be violated at the first attack. It would have been better, however, if the action had been passed at the close of the fair season instead of just in the middle of it.

Just to cheer up the pessimists. During the past year savings bank deposits in Vermont increased nearly two million and a half and the number of depositors increased nearly 6000. The amount placed in the savings institutions was nearly a five per cent increase. The percentage of increase in the number of those laying aside deposits was between four and five. There is much reason for satisfaction in the figures.

Thanks are due from the travelling public to the Central Vermont R. R. management for their action, although tardy, in placarding the trains at Montpelier so that passengers may know the proper trains to take. There will probably be no more than a few weeks of the present train schedule as the legislature will adjourn finally during the second week of December. Yet a good deal of inconvenience will be avoided even now.

RAISING THE WITNESS FEES.

Acting as a witness is not a money-making scheme in Vermont; nor should it be. But the returns ought to be enough to fairly compensate the man who is called from his work or occupation to go on the witness stand. And although the veto of Gov. Bell of the measure doubling the fees of county and justice court witnesses was supported by reasons that would be considered good generally, The Times believes that in this particular case they are not applicable. True, Vermont does not want to raise up a class of "professional witnesses," men too tired constitutionally to lift a finger toward their own maintenance and who seek to eke out an easy subsistence through taking the witness stand. That must be avoided in Vermont. But we do not believe that the increase of one dollar to two dollars in county court witness fees and fifty cents to one dollar in justice and other minor court fees will have a tendency to raise up that unwelcome class of people that the Governor speaks of. The two dollars a day and one dollar a day that will now be paid through the passage of the bill over the executive's veto, will not pay back what the average man loses through being compelled to obey the subpoena. The persons called as witnesses realize it, but they know if the subpoenas are not obeyed they will be adjudged in contempt of court for non-appearance. Therefore they appear, although in nine cases out of ten they are bound to be the losers through being forced to leave their work. This increase in the fees will go a long way toward making good that loss but no one contends that the amount paid will entirely make it up. Particularly is this true in the country places where witnesses are compelled to go long distances to be present at court. In trivial justice court cases farmers for instance, are kept from their work through the going and coming and the actual participation in the trial for a whole day; they will be paid one dollar for their time and trouble. There is little danger of raising a "professional witness class" from them.

WILLIAMSTOWN.

Mrs. Frank Martin is quite ill with another attack of asthma, brought on by a severe cold. Her daughter, Lora, is with her for a few days.

There will be a social dance at L. O. O. F. Hall tonight. Bill 50c. A good time is expected.
